Wrecks—Rumors of Wrecks—Deaths.

HALIFAX, Sept. 4.—The schooner Thetis, of Lenenbury, before reported lost with all hands, is in New London, Prince Edward's Island, harbor. Three bodies were found in the cabin and the remains of the crew are supposed to have been washed off. About fifty bodies, supposed to be the corpses of American fishermen have been washed ashore on the north side of Prince Edwards Island, Thirty-three of them were picked up between North Cape and Cassumpec. The bark Helen, from Montreal, is a total wreck on Hogg Island on the north side. Seven of the crew perished. Thee aptain, boatswain and two sailors were saved.

The boatswain was rescued from the surf by Captain McDonald, of the Dominion. A quantity of wrecked materials, a boat and two bodies have floated ashore at Campbell. The Captain and crew of the abandoned brig Oak Point, were rescued by the American fishing schooner Gertie Lewis. Capt. Howard, of the brig Oak Point, stated that an American captain, whom he saw at Cansor, reported having passed at sea after the gale a foreign boat, painted white, on fire and burned to the water's edge. It was probably the Norwegian bark Korsefavor, which left Halifax the morning of the gale for New York.

The Recent Bond and Stock Forgeries.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4th.—The police have in custody a man named Yates, on the charge of being implicated in the altering and counterfeiting of Buffalo and Erie bonds. They expect to get something out of Yates, but so far he has kept quiet.

Detective Sampson is very positive that forged stock of the Western Union Telegraph Company, in a large amount, is in existence, which it is intended to put on the market. He believes the same of the New Jersey Central bonds. Mr. Denny says the Detectives are on the right track and in a few days will have all the forgers. He says the counterfeits have been in circulation since July, and there is no telling where they may have reached. A number of the law committee of the Stock Exchange say that the Exchange would rather reimburse the victims for their loss than allow any compromise to be made.

News from Juniata—The Polaris Search Expedition.

WASHINTON, Sept. 4.—Information has been received at the navy department that the U. S. Steamer Juniata, commander D. S. Braine, arrived at Halsternburg, Greenland, on the 18th of July. She touched at Fiskanœas and Subkerna. No dogs could be found at the latter ports. Commander Braine, through the courtisys of Governor Frederick Laressu procured at Hasteinberg eighteen dogs an abundruce of seal skins for clothing for the officers and men of the Tigress, and sailed on the 19th of July for Disco, thence to Uppernack. Commander Braine had news as late as the 10th of July from Disco, but no tidings had been received there regarding the Polaris The ice was reported very heavy in Omerrack, Fierd and at and above Uppernack. The health of the officers and crew of the Juniata is excellent. The dispatch to the department came by the Danish brig Constance via Copenhagen.

Synopsis of the Resolutions of the Massachusetts Democrats.

WORCESTER, MASS., Sept. 4.—The resolutions adopted by the State Democratic Convention are to the effect that the Democratic party seeks to revive no dead issues, but stands by its principles, which are suited to all times and circumstances, supports the Federal Government in all constitutional authority, and regards at this day, as Jefferson did in his day, the true province of a Republican government to be the protection of rights and not interests, defends the reserved rights of the States and the people, and opposes centralization that would impair and destroy constitutional rights, or the independence of other departments.

The resolutions as a body are the same as those adopted by the Ohio State Democratic Convention of August 9th.

Ghouls at Work.

WASHINGTON, September 4.—Beau Hickman was buried from the Hospital, in the public burying ground yesterday. A subscription was made up to give him a better interment. The undertakers employed by the managers of this charity found the grave desecrated. The limbs, viscera and brain had been removed, The heart was found neatly wrapped up in a newspaper, which the mutilators probably forgot in their haste. A surgeons knife was found near the grave. The mutilation was evidently performed by a skilled hand.

The Juniata has arrived at Halsteinburg, in her search for the Polaris. The health of the crew is good. No news from the Polaris or Tigress.

Three others terribly scalded and doubts are entertained as to their recovery.

The proprietor of the mill, Mr. Mosely, was in Enfield at the time of the explosion. The loss will not fall short of $2,000. C.

The California Elections—The Anti-Railroaders Sweep the Field.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 4th.—The count of the vote in this city cannot be completed before Friday night or Saturday morning. Enough is known to assure a complete victory for the anti-Central Pacific Railroad monopoly's ticket for members of both branches of the Legislature, also on most of their municipal candidates. For Mayor and Chief of Police, the contest is very close, but the Railroad issue did not enter into that part of the canvass. The Democrats claim to have chosen both those officers, the result however is in doubt.

Returns from the interior of the State come in very slowly and it is impossible to make a correcte stimate of the results as yet.

In Sacramento City where the Railroad shops are located, four thousand votes were cast, the Railroad leaders claim a majority of three or four hundred. This the indedependents say will be largely overcome in the country and go to secure a decided victory over the Railroad. In nearly every town heard from this far, the independent anti-Railroad is ahead.

The Big Balloon to "Go Up"—Another Bank Defalcation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—It is said that the balloon of the trans-Atlantic voyage will ascend on the 10th inst. from Brooklyn.

An expert from New York is now examining the accounts of Appleton, the cashier of the State Bank of New Brunswick, who is alleged to be a defaulter to the amount of defalcation believed to be two hundred thousand dollars. The general opinion is that Appleton has been speculating in real estate, and is said to own sufficient property to cover the amount.

The law co-partnership heretofore existing between J. C. L. Harris and T. M. Argo, has been dissolved by mutual consent.

Mr. W. H. Lyon, at the corner of Person and Martin streets, has for sale a new American Sewing Machine in perfect order—cheap. Also, a house with two rooms and ¼ acre of land attached. Terms easy.

Rev. R. H. Whitaker, Secretary of the State Council, Friends of Temperance, issued charters for the organization of six new Councils yesterday. This order in in a more flourishiag condition than at any period since its existence.

The Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society were in session yesterday morning and in the afternoon visited the new grounds and buildings, Col. T. M. Holt, President of the Society presided at the meeting.

An important sale of real estate occurred in the city yesterday. Major W. H. Eagley became the purchaser of the Haywood property on the corner of Fayetteville and Martin streets, embracing the stores of S. D. Harrison and C. H. Weathers, paying $10,000 for the same.

In looking over some of the ancient records of the Executive office yesterday, our eye fell upon the Commission of the Hon. G. E. Badger, as Judge of the Superior Court of Law. The Commission is signed Jessie Franklin, Governor, and countersigned Wm. Plummer, Private Secretary. It is dated December 15th, 1820. Mr. Badger was at that time only twenty-five years of age and resided at Louisburg, Franklin county.

The Reams Cotton Plow and Chopper was at work again yesterday evening in the garden of Maj. J. H. Russ, of this city. Its operations were witnessed by several gentlemen of the city who seemed to take much interest in the operations. As there was no cotton to shop, the chopper could not show its merit, but the combination plows did all that was claimed for them. Several of our farmers will soon have some cotton in readiness, when Mr. Reams will make a full and fair test of his plow.

WILLIAMSON UPCHURCH & THOMAS.—Especial attention is called to the new announcment in our advertising column of Messrs. Williamson Upchurch & Thomas. Farmers supplies of every character obtainable at this house on terms easy and accommodating.

CALLED MEETING OF HICKMAN LODGE.—There will be a called meeting of Hickman Lodge No. 1. I. O. G. T., at their Lodge room this (Friday) evening at 7½ o'clock. Monie has removed his entire stock of groceries to the Grausman stand, two doors south of Tucker Hall, recently occupied by Ramsey, the clothier. Mr. Monie advertises a large and attractive stock of plain and fancy groceries, wood and willoware and crockery, which he offers to sell at bottom prices, and from his just and well earned reputation as a fair and liberal dealer, we are prepared to assert that he will do it. Read his advertisement, then go and see him.

CLEANING UP.—I. W. Rogers, Esq., the Keeper of Capitol, is engaged cleaning up, repairing and otherwise getting the two legislative halls, in order for the assembling of Legislature in November next. The hall of the House of Representatives is sadly in need of a new carpet, as it has been so often patched there is no room for patching left. The Legislature will doubtless at its coming session make an appropriation for a new one. The interior of the Capitol is also in need of a general cleansing up, repainting, etc., all of which will be brought before the General Assembly.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.—At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society, held in the city of Raleigh, on the 4th of September, 1873, on motion, Jordan Stone, Col. J. M. Heck and Dr. B. F. Arrington, were appointed a Committee to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of Hon. Daniel D. Barringer, who recently died at the White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

The Committee submitted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, Hon. Daniel M. Barringer, formerly one of the permanent Vice Presidents of the State Agricultural Society, departed this life on first inst., at the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs; and whereas the Society is desirous of expressing its feelings of sorrow and grief at the loss which the State of North Carolina has sustained in the death of such a distinguished and useful citizen, therefore be it Resolved, That this Society has received with feelings of profound sadness the intelligence of the death of Hon. D. M. Barringer, of this city, whose life, during a long and distinguished public and private career, has been characterised by strict integrity, a patriotic public spirit, and an honest zeal for the welfare, prosperity and honor of his native State.

Resolved, That the high character which the deceased has ever maintained in the discharge of the official trusts which have been confided to his hands in the councils of the State and nation, and in the discharge of the private obligations which rested upon him as a man and as a citizen, as well as the eminent virtues which distinguished him in life, are worthy of our highest admiration and emulation.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be entered upon the records of this Society, and sent to the family of the deceased, and to the papers for publication.

A SINGULAR COINCIDENCE.—It is rather a singular coincidence that the Badger family served one term each in the State Legislature for three successive generations. Thos. Badger from Newbern, in 1796; Hon. Geo. E. Badger from Newbern, in 1816, and R. C. Badger from Wake, in 1872.

The Graham family also served in the State Legislature for three successive generations. Gen. Joseph Graham, from Mecklenburg, from 1788 to 1794; Hon. W. A. Graham, from Orange, from 1835 to 1855, and Jno. W. and J. A. Graham, the former from Orange, in 1868 and 1870, and the latter from Alamance, in 1870.

Of the above named leading families of the State, it is singular that the second generation of each were the most distinguished, Geo. E. Badger and Wm. A. Graham. It is furthermore singular that each of them should enter the General Assembly as borough representatives in the lower House, and each held positions under two departments of the State government, Graham in the Legislative and Executive departments, and Badger in the Legislative and Judicial departments. Both belonged to the same profession and the same political party, served their State in the United States Senate, and filled at different times, the position of Secretary of the Navy in the United States Cabinet, and both were the sons of Northern men that came to North Carolina.

PERSONALS.—Col. Thomas M. Holt, President of the North Carolina Railroad is registered at the Yarborough.

Col. Wm. A. Johnson, of Littleton, Chief Marshal of the Weldon fair is in the city.

Capt. C. G. Elliott, of the firm of Elliott & White of Norfolk, Va., passed through this city yesterday en route from a trip to Western North Carolina.

Capt. Fillyaw, one of that Gentlemenly gang of Wilmington & Weldon R. R. Conductors is Stopping at the Yarborough.

B. F. Rogers, Esq., Secretary of the Western North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical Fair Association at Salisbury, illumined our sanctum with the smile of his pleasant countenance yesterday. Mr. Rogers is bending his energies towards the success of the Salisbury fair, and our opinion is, it must be a success. Of the fair though, and its prospects we will speak more of to-morrow.

A NEW INVENTION BY A RALEIGHITE.—The patent office department has issued to Mr. Rufus K. Warren, of this city, letters patent for an improvement in fire-proof cotton lint rooms, dated August 19th, 1873. The patent is a moveable ceiling, by which the ginner can, the moment a fire is detected, throw the ceiling upon the lint, excluding the air and effectually smothering the fire. Mr. A. H. Temple is the business manager of the new invention, and will exhibit the same in operation at an early day. It will also be on exhibition at the State Fair, where Mr. Temple will make a practical test of its merits.

MAYOR'S COURT.—Buffalo, who seriously stabbed his wife on Monday, an account of which appeared in the NEWS of yesterday, was arrested by officer Crosson and brought before his Honor, acting as Justice of the Peace, yesterday, but owing to the inability of the injured woman to attend as the principal witness the prisoner was recommitted to jail to await further examination.

A number of small boys were arrested for disorderly conduct, and after being reprimanded and fined by his Honor, were sent to their parents for further instructions—and thus ended the "days doings" at the Mayor's levee.

"THE DIAMOND BRACELET; OR, THE EVIL WROUGHT BY ONE MAN."—This is the name of an interesting story that is to be published by the Charlotte Our Weekly, commencing on the 13th inst. Beau Hickman—A Sketch of His Ill-Spent Life.

Our telegrams have already announced the death of this notorious character at Washington, D. C., where he has found a pauper's grave. Although leading a disreputable life in that city for more than thirty years, two States are claiming the honor of his nativity. Some of his biographers say that he was a native of Virginia while others assert positively that he was born at or near Warrenton, in this State. Seven cities claimed to be the birth place of Homer, now two States squabble over that of Hickman. The following sketch of the eventful and ill-spent life of this Bohemian, we find in the National Republican and reproduce it as it will be interesting to many of our readers:

"Among the older citizens of Washington there seems to be quite a diversity of opinion as to his advent here and the causes which led him to adopt his peculiar and disgraceful mode of gaining a livelihood, but the following personal sketch is thought to be correct, and shows that he is very respectably connected:

His name is Robert L. Hickman, and he was born in King William county, Virginia, being now, according to best accounts and data, over sixty years of age. He was one of a family of six children, three boys and three girls, two of the latter having married General Eaton, of North Carolina. It is said that on the death of his father he was the possessor of about $40,000 in cash.

At that time a young man of good appearance, tasty in dress, extravagant in habit, and fond of life, he made up his mind to see a good time, and he saw it so well that within a couple of years he was a bankrupt. The story further goes that in his distress he applied for aid to his brothers-in-law, and that gentlemen, disgusted with the actions of his relative, sternly refused all aid, but finally concluded to give him a check for $10,000 on condition that he would leave and never return to his house again. Beau, accepted the proposition, took the money, returned to his old haunts, and, casting aside his valuable but bitter experience, was soon again reduced to want.

Then Beau concluded that the world owed him a living. Too proud to work, too honest to steal, he adopted his vagabond, Bohemian life, and, levying a tax on all who came in contact with him, made it pay. At this time, well-dressed, sporting a fine watch and chain, diamond pin, of good address, fond of a story, which he could tell with gusto, he met in the then annual visitors to the capital a class of gentlemen who were wont to indulge his "beating" for the amusement he afforded, and paid him liberally for it. He knew enough to adapt himself to the different society with which he chanced to be thrown into, and in his early days, not being much of a bore, he found the men ready and willing to pay tribute. Even at this time, with all his excesses, he was not known as a drinking man, and, unless in the company of the profane, not at all profane; but when a vulgar story was started by one in the crowd he could "see it" and "go considerable better" in the same line.

Of course he soon became well known throughout the country, and in 1849 had become so notorious that no stranger ever thought of coming to this city without asking to see him, and willingly paying the required amount for the introduction. About this time the hotel proprietors began to consider him considerable of a nuisance, and for some years he was not allowed to enter either Brown's or the National, but he always managed to see the guests of both and place them on his list. He had a remarkable memory, both for facts and faces; knew all the public men of that time, and on their return during the winter season never failed to accost them by name and tell them the amount charged against them.

What his revenues were, of course no one knew, but he lived in good style, and in the summer he never failed to visit one or two of the springs, and never missed a race—in fact, he considered himself au fait in horse matters, and in later days he could tell you of famous horses for the past thirty years. He was excessively fond of relating to the stranger, of late days, reminiscences of the great men of the past, of all of whom he spoke in the most familiar terms. With such a reputation it is but natural that there were many original stories told of and about him, one of the best being how he beat a railroad conductor.

Beau had been to Baltimore to a race, got broke, and concluded that the railroad owned him a ride home. Accordingly he took a common card, stuck it in the band of his high hat, and getting an inside seat stuck his head out of the window. Along comes the conductor for his tickets, and, noticing the gentleman seated apparently in a deep study, he tapped him on the shoulder. Beau started up suddenly, and off went his hat. Then he became indignant, wanted the train stopped whether or no, and insisted so vehemently in his rights that the poor conductor was scared, and rather than lose time he agreed to pay for the hat and pass the gentleman over, both of which he did. The story soon got out, and Beau was a dead-head with that conductor as long as he remained on the line.

His advice to strangers about going into gambling-houses was also good. "You want to tackle 'Faro?'" he would say; "well, now let me give you a little advice, and I know all about it. You go in, and if there are many players, and any big ones, you get in and play light. The dealer will be mad as hell when he sees it, but you need not mind. He's bound to let you win, and go for the big ones. Then, when you get a stake, don't be too greedy, but leave." For this good advice he would always add, "You owe me about a 'red chip.'" In asking for money he would always call for chips, designated as follows: A white chip, $1; a red chip, $5, and a blue chip, $20—the several amounts being levied according to his estimate of the ability of the giver. When he "struck" a man for a blue, if he didn't respond, Beau would not consider it beneath his dignity to fall even to the white, which he then accepted with thanks.

A story is told of him that during Mayor Walter Lenox's term of office some man was brought before him for some offence, and he was accompanied by Beau, who attempted to appear as lawyer. The rather riled Mr. L., and he at once informed the would-be barrister that if he didn't make himself scarce he would send him to the workhouse as a vagrant. Beau slopped away alone, and never spoke to Mr. Lenox until his term of office had expired; then, meeting him one day with a company of gentlemen, he walked up, reminded him of the occurrence, and said, "You ain't mayor now; I think you had better settle our little account—it's getting too large." The gentlemen gave Mr. L. the laugh, and in accordance with the custom he paid up.

About 1856 or 1857 Beau began to go down hill. His natty clothes looked seedy, his hat battered, his shirt soiled, and his feet a series of knots from corns, which caused him to walk lame. He was not then so particular about his prices, but would even take as low as ten cents. When asked to drink, as he often was, his invariable reply was, "No, thank you; I'll take ten cents or a smoke." During the war he had considerable luck with army officers, and got considerable money, but his personal appearance did not improve. At the close of the war he again degenerated, and any day could be seen hobbling about the hotels with his scanty and well-worn coat, very seedy pants, tobacco-stained shirt-front, worn clothes and bent form, totally unlike the Beau of thirty years ago.

He had somewhere in the city a room, which was taken care of by an old negress, and there he slept, and ate when of the restaurants. Persons who knew him are divided in opinion as to his having ever had any money; some saying that he had saved $15,000 or $20,000, and others declaring that he had not a cent; but it is certain that when taken to the hospital he had but little.

On the occasion of the carnival he created considerable amusement for the crowd which lined the Avenue, by appearing mounted on a sorry-looking steed, and dashing at breakneck speed, in Gilpin style, up and down amid the shouts and plaudits of the people.

A fruit canning establishment that was started last year in New Orleans has proved a success, and this year a large number of figs and artichokes will be sent North. Of the latter fruit a New Orleans paper says: "The Southern artichoke is a vegetable so little known at the North that people having never seen it before, care little to purchase it at first, but those who have acquainted their palates with the delicate flavor of the Louisiana artichoke speak loud praises for it, and commend the manner of its preservation."

Two valuable paintings, by French masters, were recently purchased for the Corcoran Art Gallery, in Washington, and are now on their way from Europe. They are "The Death of Cæsar," by Gerome, and "The Count of Wurtemberg Weeping over the Body of his Son," by Ary Scheffer. The pictures cost $4,000 each.

Short umbrellas are worn stock in the belt like a dagger, protruding behind and before in an inconvenient way, not nearly as graceful as the fashion of hanging the umbrella by a chatelaine. This is, however, a part of the "grasshopper trend," a summer folly introduced at Saratoga, where the absurd Grecian bend first appeared.

to my new stand on Fayetteville Place, I have determined to reduce my stock, and in order to do this quickly, my prices will be found low. Having been burned up in the fall of 1871, and by a second fire on the memorable night of 5th January, 1873, I hope to merit a continuance of the patronage of my friends.

THE DAILY NEWS.

FRIDAY.....SEPTEMBER 5, 1873.

THE animal show—Beast BUTLER'S political manœuvres in Massachusetts.

JONES, of the Charlotte Observer, is not at home. He would not have permitted it to be printed "Miss JEANNIE T."

WOODEN railways are discussed this week by the Greensboro Patriot. The experiment is worth trying, in view of the heavy cost of iron roads.

THE New North State wants to know what BEN BUTLER would do for fame but for the newspapers he has so defiantly attacked?

There is a distinction between fame and notoriety. BUTLER has the latter.

THE New North State, Radical, says the accounts of ku klux outrages in Kentucky "cannot be untrue for they appear in the Louisville Courier-Journal, a Democratic newspaper."

Well, we are glad to hear our adversaries admit that one Democratic newspaper can tell the truth.

MR. LONG, the Grange lecturer, denies that he assaulted the State press at Faison's Hall. So we learn from the Magnolia Monitor.

Perhaps the Clinton Reporter did not understand his meaning, but the charge is made directly against him by the latter paper.

COL. S. D. POOL is engaged in one of the most laudable enterprises ever undertaken in the State. Our Living and Our Dead should be taken by every Confederate soldier. Only $2 a year. It is worth five times the price. Address him at Newbern.

THE Washington Republican belongs to that class of newspapers which having eyes see not, and having ears hear not the arguments of their political opponents.

Vide its comments on the RALEIGH NEWS' editorial about the execution of the Modocs.

THE guitar—not the banjo—is the musical instrument that TOM EVANS, of the Richmond Enquirer, handles so gushingly.

We make this amende before the venerable gentleman of the Milton Chronicle calls us to account for the error.

THE great New York dailies, following the example of the leading English newspapers, have ceased to intrude their personal quarrels upon their readers, as was their wont. They now pay no attention to the yelpings of penny-a-liners and blackguards that occasionally snarl at their heels. Such terms as "liars, cowards and scoundrels," which they used to apply towards each other so freely, have grown entirely into desuetude.

MAJ. DUFFY, in the Greensboro Patriot, says the RALEIGH NEWS is in error in regard to his having fought in the Union army. Although a Northern man, he says he was "opposed to the war from its inception till its close, and consequently did not 'jine the army'" He "regarded the war as a crusade against the rights, liberties and property of ten millions of people, and took no stock in it," and has cause now to be "profoundly grateful" that he did not.

THE death of BEAU HICKMAN will call to mind many of his amusing sayings as well as the sharp practices of his checkered career. He was a native of Virginia and has many highly respectable connections in that State. The Washington Chronicle has the following to say concerning his life:

"In early life he was what is termed a 'gay boy,' and in the turf he invested unsuccessfully an inheritance of nearly $40,000. Down as he was in pocket, though, his "turf" friends stood by him until he became with natural talent and oily tongue, a recognized ward of the traveling public. He never drank, but always "took a cigar": and to his credit it must be said that, although he lived from hand to mouth at times, in his patronage of bar-room cheese and cracker boxes, he never ordered a meal or a condiment which he did not promptly pay for. Many are the anecdotes related of his ingenuity in fooling railroad conductors, hotel-keepers, and others; and, in fact, some of his doings in that respect have become traditional American jokes; but so respectful was he in men at all times that no one will utter other than a compassionate sentiment over his remains."

An Appeal to the Ladies.

Col. S. D. POOL, Editor of Our Living and Our Dead, in the last issue of that publication makes an eloquent appeal to the daughters of North Carolina, to aid him in the noble work in which he is engaged, of preserving from oblivion the heroic deeds of our patriot-soldiers.

A few weeks ago, Col. POOL acknowledged his obligations to a number of persons for historical data and memoranda furnished, and among others he mentioned two ladies of this city who had kindly forwarded to him some valuable papers.

From the fact that "many of the gallant souls, impoverished by the war," are compelled to labor unremittingly for the support of their families, and "cannot spare the time, in many instances, to search their records and forward material" "for Our Living and our Dead, Col. Pool appeals "to the ladies of his native State, fair daughters of our common mother, North Carolina," to aid him in his enterprise.

Our First War Governor.

We do not remember when our feelings have been more deeply moved than when we read the articles in the issue of Our Living and Our Dead of September the 3rd, containing the tributes of respect, soon after his death, to the memory of JOHN W. ELLIS, North Carolina's first war Governor. The tributes embrace the comments of the press of the State, representing both the old Whig and Democratic parties, the memorial proceedings of Masonic Lodges in different portions of North Carolina, and the action of municipal bodies, public meetings of citizens and of the military authorities of the State.

These touching testimonials carry us back to the exciting scenes of 1861—when the YOUNG CONFEDERACY, fresh, vigorous, bouyant, full of promise and of ambition, sprang into the arena, under circumstances of the most auspicious nature. Everything seemed bright and beautiful along the pathway of the maiden Republic, save the war-cloud which floated in angry threatenings above.

Sorrow had not then draped our Southern homes in mourning. The crimson tide of battle had not overflowed our plains. The heroes that now sleep their long sleep of death, were then full of lusty life—with hearts beating with patriotic zeal and ardent courage. Our banners then rustled defiantly to the breeze and flashed brightly in the sun—the proud emblems of a new-born nationality.

When the war broke out, Governor Ellis stood at the helm of State in North Carolina. Stricken down with disease, emanciated with physical agony, with the Reaper Death standing with uplifted scythe at his door, his noble heart shrank not from the trying ordeal before him. Lying on his sofa, in the Executive Mansion, "sick almost unto death," he wrote his memorable reply to Lincoln's demand for the quota of troops from this State, to coerce South Carolina and her seceding sisters. Governor Ellis' brief but expressive and manly response:

"YOU CAN GET NO TROOPS FROM NORTH CAROLINA—"

which has already passed into history, was answered "with alacrity from Cherokee to Currituck," by the spontaneous uprising of our citizen-soldiery, who offered their services to the State to resist the encroachments of Federal power and to repel the invaders from the soil of the South.

But the responsibilities resting upon the Chief Executive of a great Southern State were too burdensome for one in Governor Ellis' prostrated condition. On the 7th of July, 1861, his noble spirit fled to its God.

While his gallant courage never bowed to the storm—while his eagle eye quailed not in the presence of danger and of trial—while his manly heart beat to the last with pulsations of patriotic ardor and devotion for his native State, yet he could not ward off the arrow of the insatiable ARCHER. He fell one of the first Southern martyrs, as he was one of the noblest and the best!

History will yet do justice to the memory of North Carolina's first war Governor. A patriot, a statesman, a hero, he fell at the post of duty and honor. Let his name be enshrined forever in the hearts of his countrymen!

RALEIGH NEWS.—This excellent journal is out in a new dress.

The NEWS is one of the best papers in the State, and is ever a welcome visitor in this office.

This is a sure sign of its prosperity and acceptance among the people of North Carolina. Long may it live!—Durham Tobacco Plant.

The RALEIGH NEWS appears in a new dress and somewhat enlarged. The NEWS is one of our very best dailies, and we are glad to know that it is meeting with the substantial encouragement it deserves.—Greensboro Patriot.

To the Plant and the Patriot we beg to make our acknowledgments for the above kindly notices. We shall endeavor to retain their good opinions.

THE Wilmington Star does us the favor to notice our new suit.

A horrible murder last week was committed on Thursday night last at Smithville, Georgia, the dinner station on the Eufaula and Macon branch of the Southwestern Railroad. The victim was a young man by the name of Joseph Johnson, aged about fifteen years, who slept in the store of his employer, Mr. Batts. The boy had gone to bed, and being aroused by the noise of burglars, probably arose and walked behind the counter, where he was attacked and killed by them. The weapons used were a heavy screw plate and a knife. With the former the boy's skull was crushed in, and with the latter the left artery of his neck was severed, producing instant death. It was evident that the original object of the murderers was to rob the store, but being discovered by young Johnson, who, alone and single-handed, undertook to defend his employer's property, they did not hesitate to add murder to their original evil design. No clue to the villains has yet been obtained, and only five dollars in money and a bottle of whisky have been missed from the store.

Mayor Estes, of Augusta, Ga., is in Rochester, N. Y., looking for an engineer to superintend the construction of a hydraulic canal from the Savannah river to the former city, the canal to be seven miles long, one hundred and fifty feet wide and eleven feet deep.

The declared value of eggs imported into the United Kingdom in the last seven months was £1,617,782; in the same period in the preceding year, £1,172,486.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

BILLOUS.—If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, despondent, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly in morning, irregular appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Billious Attack." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only a part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal. It effects perfect cure, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. Sold by all first-class druggists.

How unnecessary the anguish many persons undergo from rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache and earache. We say unnecessary because the application of Mexican Mustang Liniment to the affected part, or a few drops of it in the ear or tooth, affords instantaneous, and what is better, permanent relief. For cuts, wounds, bruises, sprains, and all injuries or diseases which require treatment externally, this liniment is every where regarded as the most potent and reliable healing agent in existence. For all external injuries or ailments of horses and cattle it is infallible.

His Honor, HENRY POTTER, late Judge of the United States Court for the District of North Carolina, gave the following as his opinion of Beckwith's Pills:

A colored man residing in Wilkes county, by name of Rufus Parkes and wife left their house on the 13th ult. to see after some business matters about their premises, leaving three small children in charge of their house. So says the Mountain Messenger.

A colored man employed at the turpentine distillery of Mr. A. H. Van-Bokkelen, says the Wilmington Star of the 3d inst., possessed of a certain amount of that superstition which characterizes many of his race, was made the victim yesterday of a "conjure doctor" hailing from South Carolina. He exhibited his naked back to a number of gentlemen, which was found to be severely lacerated and cut, and the poor ignorant fellow declared that it was done by the "conjure doctor" for the purpose of extracting lizards, frogs, snakes and other reptile from his body, and he verily believed that such a thing had been accomplished. The impostor charged $4 for the alleged service and the victim borrowed the money from his employer to pay him.

Sketches of Travel in Western North Carolina, by Our Traveling Correspondent.

NUMBER THREE.

Twelve miles this side of Asheville is the residence of Mr. Samuel Alexander. It is but a short distance from the Swannanoa, and on all sides of the dwelling the mountains tower. It is by far the best place to stop at, if one is inclined to climb the hoary summit of Mt. Mitchell before proceeding further. Its lofty cone is seen from this point, and though apparently near, it is in reality some 10 miles away. If grander scenery and more beautiful landscapes did not beckon the tourist still westward, he might well be content to pass the summer here. Hard by the house is a gushing spring of ice-cold water, and of such sparkling purity as to rival the Castalian fount on Parnassus. The sweetest flowers of the Ridge are sprinkled with a lavish hand around; merry brooklets dash in frolicsome glee on every side, halting to join the laughing river, while huge walnut, chestnut and sugar-maple trees over-arch them with the deepest shade. Until the morning hour is far advanced mist over-spread the valleys like an over-flowing nocturnal inundation, covering all but the tops of the highest trees, and as they creep up the mountain sides, they look like a vast shroud. The peaks that are seen present the appearance of headlands in the midst of ocean. As the sun ascends, all these vapors are driven away. Eolus then lets loose the winds imprisoned in the gorges of the mountains, and then the murmuring waters and the whispering trees produce sounds at once melodious, sonorous and melancholy. The sky assumes that serenity of aspect said to be peculiar to Italy. Great diamond drops of dew fall pattering on the leaves, and shine like brilliants on the grass.

The road is graded to within a few miles of Asheville. The tunnelling of the mountains is nearly completed, and for a considerable distance ties are even laid, but for some inexplicable reason work on the road has been for the present discontinued. The mouths of the tunnels, overshadowed with moss and dripping with moisture, resemble the descriptions of Avernian gates. Our eastern minds were staggered at beholding the mighty mass of dark gray granite that lay in these huge piles by the road-side, and which had been carted from the largest tunnel. A gentleman present pointed out a spot so very beautiful as to merit a description. It was a sweet lip of a pretty vale at the base of the eastern spur. The mountains forming the back-ground were clothed to the very summit with magnificent trees. Through the midst was winding, forever winding, a pretty stream of water. We could hear distinctly the soft tinkle of the cow-bells, see the smoke from the cottages, which lay scattered on the mountains, rising here and there, and creeping upward along their sides, while cascades were falling into the many ravines. We reached Asheville late in the evening, just as the flushed glare of crimson told the death struggle of an angry sunset with the dull and heavy clouds. The shades of evening in the valleys among the mountains gather fast, for as soon as the sun disappears, the lengthening shadows begin to fall rapidly, and though the summits hang fire for a long time with his departing rays, yet the vales soon don their nightly shroud. In entering the city (in the future perhaps), one turns the angle of a round mountain. Below the town and above it, the mountains give away for the majestic sweep of the French Broad River; and the plain, on which the town stands, is enclosed between two amphitheatres of lofty hills, shaped with the regularity and even edge of a coliseum, and resembling the two halves of a leaf-vined vase, struck apart by a twisted wand of silver. Here are mountains in the distance, that to look on but once, becomes a feeling—a river at whose beauty to marvel, and a hundred streamlets to lave about the heart. We would advise all thirsty souls to beware how they enter this town, as the mountains are not permitted to shed their "dew" within its sacred limits.

The sun in his round trip visits no more beautiful scenery than can be seen here. The valley of the French Broad sweeps out of sight, rich in green fields, dotted here and there with palatial residences, while over all a spirit of quiet broods, a silence such as the ear has no perception of elsewhere. Ascending any one of the small knobs around the town excellent views can be obtained, a description of which is reserved.

I was considerably amused at the bluster and swagger of a Greek Jew, who was chaffering with mine host for better accommodations. Sure business and not pleasure must have called this degenerate scion of an illustrious ancestry to this mountain village, for all along from Old Fort, even in the midst of scenery that would put to shame the vale of Tempe and lordly Olympus, he was discussing the probability of good fare, and how "sheep" it might be. He seemed to possess wealth, and finally procured better lodging, and as he walked away from our group with a consequential air and self-satisfied mien, the biting words of Scotia's bard flashed upon me, and I could not help repeating for his benefit, the sarcasm of the poet, who wrote for just such a character:

"Lives there a man for honest poverty,
Who hangs his head and a' that—
The coward slave we pass him by
And dare be poor for a' that."

The hotel accommodations in this mountain village are excellent, and though there was a great influx of strangers, hailing from nearly every State, yet there was no scarcity of good fare. It is becoming fashionable to make this village the headquarters for a mountain foray, and no better place could be selected, for you have all the seclusion of a rural town and none of its petty politics and scandal. Within a half an hour's gallop, you have a sylvan retreat of every variety of beauty, and in almost any direction, for more bright waters, more secluded, bridle paths, more sunny and sheltered hill-sides, or finer minglings of rock, hill and valley, I never rode among. Then the country around about, the drives and rides are among the most lovely in the world. The banks of the river are a little wilderness of beauty. That which makes the charm of a village, and that for which we seek the country are equally here. ALIQUIS.

A man advertises in the London Telegraph for "very comfortable apartments, two bed-rooms, and a sitting-room, with meadow attached."

"Low prices will win," and "Small profits and quick sales" are truisms that have been satisfactorily tested by ZACHARIAS & CO., in the city of Raleigh.

By a strict adherance to these important rules, their business has increased so rapidly that necessity compells them at an early day, to commence the work of enlarging and extending their store room.

In view of this fact, they now offer their large and attractive stock of Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Clothing, &c., to the public, REGARDLESS OF COST.

The tickets are divided into ten coupons or parts and have on their back the Scheme with a full explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The numbers of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind childdren and the gifts from another.

The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

DOUBLE ACTING FORCE PUMPS,

KITCHEN BROS.,

(Successors to CAROLINA PUMP COMPANY,)

LOCATED IN RALEIGH,

Are prepared to furnish at short notice the Kitchen Pumps of various sizes with Force and Lift Pumps which can be worked with ease by one man, and will throw a full stream of water from 60 to 100 feet high, according to the size of the pump, now in use in Raleigh without the expense of more than a dollar. We make all sizes, capable of throwing from 10 gallons per minute, working in every conceivable way and by the use of hose which can be attached in half a minute, these pumps at once become a hand engine of great power, throwing water on the roof of three story buildings, with one hand, and they will stand four to six men lately. We have not heard of one of them being overcome by fire, and yet they have been tested by over fifty fires, saving over $500,000 worth of property. For ordinary use children work them easily if set as we warrant them 12 months. For double suction and Force Globe Pumps, as invented by J. L. Kitchen is capable of being used as a Drive well pump, and is well adapted to steamers and vessels of any class; one man can throw water on the roof of 3 story buildings. But it has a double ended lever and with four men is a very superior Hand Engine. The No. 2 Globe Pump is 12 inches in diameter with 12 suction and 10 delivery pipe and throws 40 to 100 gallons per minute, according to speed. The No. 3 Globe, 10 inches in diameter, 7 inch suction and 6 inch discharge pipe, capable of 2,500 gallons per minute. These Globe Pumps are made of cast iron for common use, brass for salt water and the working parts of best silver grade for drinking water, they all raise water 27 feet perpendicular, and you can put it in the house and draw water from spring or wells at great distances.

All kinds of steam and water pipe fitted at short notice; hose, hose pipe and couplings furnished here, &c.

Send for price list. Pipe entire length of wells with good returns. Prompt attention to all orders.

Some few of these pumps have not given satisfaction but in each case it has been attributable to the maker and not the principle of the pump. We are now employing the best mechanics only, and are determined to have none of the

Dear Sir—I have had one of your Force Pumps in use for two years, and it has proved in every respect as you represented it and I would not be without it for twice the cost of it.

Yours respectfully,
R. A. WATSON.

GREENVILLE, April 19, 1872.

MR. J. L. KITCHEN—

Sir—I have been using one of your pumps driven from my steam engine, by supplying my mules. I have used it continually for two years, and can cheerfully recommend it for any purpose where water is required. The pump is so constructed that it will last without getting out of order for years, and I have heard no complaints from any of your many pumps used in this locality for yard well pumps.

WM. S. BROADDUS.

John C. Gorman and W. C. Stronach, of Raleigh, give certificates stating that they have had the pump in use one and two years, are perfectly satisfied with it, and it has not cost them one cent for repairs.

Messrs. Wilson and Waddell, at Wilson's Mills, on the North Carolina Railroad, write that the No. 2 Globe Pump, with 15 feet of 1¼ inch hose, purchased from the Messrs. Atkinson to protect their mill and sash and blind factory against fire, is the best pump they have ever seen. They will buy another as soon as it can be made, for another well. Several parties have examined their pump and will no doubt order them.

A Description of Brigham Young's Wives.

There are enough of them, and it is said that there is a revolt in the harem. Artemus Ward once had the impudence to ask the prophet how he liked Mormonism "as far as he had got." He has since then gone further and may fare worse. Mary Ann Angell Young is the first and legal wife. She is a large, fine-looking old lady, with gray hair, hazel eyes, and most dignified manners. Lucy Decker Seely Young, No. 2, is fat, good-natured, brown hair, dark eyes, small features. Wife No. 3, is her sister, short, thickset, tolerably good-looking. No. 4—Harriet Cook Young, tall, light hair, blue eyes. In this gallery of beauties it is a relief to meet Mrs. Twiss Young, stout, freckled, red-haired, and who does up the Prophet's linen. We cannot go through the catalogue. There are twenty-four of them. It is singular to find how many of these women left their husbands to be sealed to Brigham. A correspondent thus discourses on the daily occupations of some of these women:

What do the women do? Well, they do everything they can to pass away the time, and Brigham's house hold is not a place of idleness. Emeline sings and plays; Roxy Snow writes poems; Zina Huntington takes care of children and amuses them; Twiss washes and sews; Emeline Free takes care of her children, of whom she has, or had, eight; Ellen Rockwood works embroidery; others spin, some still weaves, others sew, read novels and sleep.

On rising in the morning, each wife cleans up her own room, dresses her children and prepares for breakfast. At the ringing of the bell the whole family assemble in the parlor and sing together; Young prays fervently, and they go to breakfast.

THE SWIMMING COLLAR.—The swimming collar, a new invention, is very thin and light. India rubber circular, cylindrical inflated tube, which is placed round the neck by being drawn over the head before inflation; or, those in use for women, tied round the neck. It is then inflated through a small tube long enough to reach to mouth. As, however, the India rubber cylinder would not of itself be strong enough to bear rough usage, it is enclosed in an outer cover or case of elastic cotton, similar in texture to a cotton stocking, which outer cover, being smaller than the innertube, is tightly filled before the latter is so, and thus receives all the strain from any outward pressure or blow. This is the same principle as that on which the American inflated tubular boat was constructed which some time since crossed the Atlantic from New York to Southampton. The buoyancy of the collar, which will float an iron weight of eight pounds, will raise a person's head quite out of the water, and float him with his mouth about four or five inches above its surface. The actual weight of the collar is less than two ounces.
